

1. God you are for me a brilliant light. You are the one restoring me and saving all. You are the strength of life, I rest assured and strong in you, no fears, no shadows near can trouble me.
4. There's only this one thing I ask of you, one thing for which I care: that your own dwelling place becomes a home for me, each day, each night, I shelter there.
5. For in that place I see the brilliance and the beauty of your face, all this, enough for me, is temple, mountain, highest ground, and there I come to seek and know your grace, your love.
6. For in these troubled times I come to you, to find a place to hide away, your tent that covers all. Your presence is the highest pinnacle of rock on which to stand, beyond this storm.
7. For there you raised my head and lift my eyes to you above my enemies' round about and unafraid.
8. And in this sacred place I give my being back to you, and everything as sacrifice; And there I offer you in song, a grateful heart and a voice filled up with praise and prayer.
9. O hear this voice that calls to you, take pity on my soul and answer back I pray.
